New Members - Welcome

Photographers' Rules of Engagement

PSA Member Benefits

Photographic Etiquette House Rules

There are no rules... but there should be. Just like rules of etiquette, there are rules of civility. Every photographer should take personal responsibility for his or her actions when in the presence of other photographers

- When among a cohesive group of photographers approaching a new scene (like on a DCC Field Trip), each should "hang back" for a few minutes for everyone in the group to capture the "long shot" without it being "contaminated" by eager photographers rushing into the scene for a close up shots.
- Be conscious of the "frame" other photographers are developing so as not to enter their frame.
- Be respectful of the limited time available at a scene and do not "camp-out" at the best view denying other photographers the opportunity to use the same viewpoint. Take your exposures, however many, and move on.

- Make certain that your equipment, especially, your tripod does not invade the space of other photographers.
  - Keep your voice muted so as not to distract other photographers except when your memory card crashes.
  - Assist your colleagues when necessary or requested to facilitate their shot.
  - Observe the rules of engagement: for example, NO Flash means no flash.
  - Do not jostle a fellow photographer which would degrade his or her attempt to steady the camera.
  - Offer advice to those of your group who seem to be in need of technical help but be careful not to intrude when advice is not wanted.
  - When another group of photographers invade your space, poke them in the eye with your monopod.
- Jay Hoppenstein, Ed.

Carolyn Brown - February Guest Speaker - Inspiration

INSPIRATION:

I look back on my life and wonder: What was it that made me travel to the places I went to take photographs? I have two very large bodies of work, mostly from the 1980's, 1990's, and into the 2000's, including the Middle East, Mexico, and more--and I ask myself, if I would have the inspiration to do that again? The answer is no. What was it that inspired me to do what I did?

My talk will concern the subject of Inspiration and what it means. I hope everyone in attendance will get in touch with what makes inspiration happen on a personal level, and how to access it.

Attached images represent how my inspiration has evolved through the years.

Mike Hill March Guest Speaker - Africa Safari

Most of us think of travel as a trip to Europe to see old castles and famous tourist sites or a trip to one of the national parks or to the beach (of course there are always those obligatory trips to see Grandma and the cousins). These are all great trips, but after a while one old castle begins to look like another old castle and one old painting of some great person forgotten by history hanging in a dark room with tall ceilings seems to look like another. Soooo, why not shake things up a little and try something different for a change. Why not add a little adventure to your travels?

When I talk to people who have never been to Africa, I can see their expressions instantly change. They always ask four things: Is it safe with all the terrorists running around? Won't the wild animals eat you, trample you to death, poison you, sting you, etc. etc. etc.? Won't you catch some exotic incurable disease from eating the food, drinking the water or just breathing (you can exhale now)? And, (this is the real killer) will I have to sleep in a tent? All those concerns will be answered in the presentation.

Once you get comfortable with traveling to Southern/Eastern Africa, you will begin to see the possibilities of a wonderful and exciting adventure like none you have ever experienced in your entire life in the one remaining place on the planet that still exists pretty much the way it was before man arrived. So, leave the castle ruins behind and join us for an evening to explore stepping through the looking glass into a world your ancient ancestors knew. And, if you enjoy photographing wildlife, an African Photo Safari has to be added to the very top of your Bucket List.
